FORT McDERMIT.

The abandonment of Fort McDermitt has been proposed by General McDowell. No satisfactory reason can be given for this move, and none has been attempted. It will cost the Government more to quell one Indian scare in that region than to maintain the fort. There are dozens of posts which might better be dispensed with, and we hope the senseless project will be abandoned. The people out there are circulating petitions to prevent the threatened change. The Silver State says:

The petitions set forth that Fort McDermitt, when manned with an efficient number of soldiers, commands the good behavior of the several bands of renegade Indians who make their headquarters in that vicinity. In that section there are tens of thousands of cattle grazing upon the mountains and plains, and a great many families are located there, engaged in agricultural pursuits. It has been our experience for a long series of years, that when the force at McDermitt was reduced to a Post Guard, the hostile Indians invariably preyed upon the lives and property of the settlers. If this fort is abandoned it will leave our citizens at the mercy of the savages, who would be likely to renew their former depredations at any day. These marauding bands are still there, and in our opinion are only restrained by the presence of the United States troops, in the interest of economy (to say nothing of the protection of lives and property) we submit that one Indian campaign will cost more than the maintenance of the Fort for twenty years.

CONKLING'S CAMPAIGN.

In the course of his recent speech before the stalwarts Roscoe Conkling commented upon the bribery testimony in detail. If anything should distinguish Republicans it should be personal honesty, especially in keeping aloof from notorious lobbyists. If this condition of affairs continue, what will become of the party that saved the Union and freed the slaves? He could see no hope for any party of clique which starts with bribery as its corner-stone, and the lobby as its decoration. He sincerely hoped the charges were untrue; but the testimony had convinced him that there is cause to be vigilant and careful. He dwelt earnestly on these points, warning his friends of the attempts still making to prevent a free expression of opinion by the Legislature. As to the Senators he opposed combinations to elect the stalwarts. Half-breed Senators must be pure. The stalwarts were above suspicion. If the Half-breeds still pressed the election of unfit candidates and continued outside the pale of the party organization, and it was impossible to elect Stalwarts, they should adjourn and allow the rank and file of the State to settle the issue. This falling the Stalwarts should stand by their colors until the 31st of December, if necessary. He reviewed the Senatorial courtesy question and the Simmons case, as Grant has done.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The GAZETTE some time ago called attention to the fact that votes cast for John C. Jacobs at Albany were void. In the joint convention yesterday at the conclusion of the roll call, Senator Fowler rose and said that it had been given out that the votes cast for John C. Jacobs were void, and in view of the fact that such may be the decision of the convention, and thus an election forced, at the request of Senator Jacobs he would change his vote to Clarkson N. Potter. It was decided to recall the names of Democratic members and they voted for various candidates.

The third vote was all broken up, as follows: Conkling, 32; Wheeler, 50; Lapham, 16; Jacobs, 12; C. N. Potter, 7; Cornell, 2; S. C. Cox, 2; John Kelly, 3; Hewitt, 3; Seymour, 3; Bliss, 2; Bradley, 3; Peckham, 4; Corning, 3; Parker, 3; Tilden, Babcock, Kingsley, Slocum, Folger, Westbrook, Thompson, Grace and Daniels, 1 each.

Washington society is agitated over a scandal involving one attaché of the French legation, one attaché of the Spanish legation, and a young lady of high social standing. These two young foreigners attended a brilliant reception at a fashionable residence. They paid special attention to a young lady. After all other guests had left the supper room they plied the young lady with wine until she was under its influence, and then compromised her by inducing her to go with them into another apartment, where she was seen in their company. They will be discharged from the service.

The Pittsburg Dispatch (Rep.) says: The "first quarter" of Garfield's first year in the Presidential chair was completed Saturday, and it would be hard to find three months in the career of any President in which more has been accomplished. His Secretary of State has saved millions to the country. His Postmaster General has saved a million. Official swindlers have been pushed to the wall. Machine politics has been given a death-blow. The people will begin to think that they have something to say in the government of the country.

Grant says he has not had time to answer President Garfield's letter, received while the General was in Mexico. This is only another way of saying that Garfield wrote rather a binding letter, and the silent man wants time before committing himself on paper.

It was Conkling who called his Republican opponents in New York half-breeds, and the expression leading up to it was this: "They are half for 'reform' and half for party spoils, half Republicans and half bolters—in short, 'Half-breeds'."

Zach. Montgomery is lecturing in California on "Darwinism reversed." Zachariah makes no pretense of illustrating the new theory in his own person. He believes himself to be an exception.

Another special dispensation is reported from Oregon. The camp-meeting in progress at Turners Station for several days past has been interrupted by heavy rains.

Nine-tenths of the religion of the present day is nothing but holy matrimony. —Whitcomb Times.

In Europe they call it an "American duel" when a fellow suicides. It is a French duel when a fellow neither kills himself nor his antagonist.

Clarence Pierce and a son of F. L. Young, boys about 13 years of age, had a lively adventure last Friday. While hunting in Eagle Canyon, about 15 miles from Santa Barbara, they suddenly met a deer. They fired, but as their guns were loaded with bird shot, the only effect was to madden him and he attacked them. Young Pierce struck at him with his gun, but at the first blow the weapon was shattered to pieces. They had a severe struggle, but used their pocket knives and killed the animal.

Some days ago the house of a miserly farmer named Stokes, living in Sharp county, Mo., was robbed of $400 or $500 by six masked men. Thursday night last a band of men went to the houses of James Tibbitts, Alexander Stanley and James and Jonathan Callahan, and took them to a place, where they tortured them to bring out a confession, but failed.

Assistant Attorney-General McCammon, law officer for the Interior Department, left Washington yesterday for Fort Hall Indian Reservation, to arrange for and counsel an agreement between the Indians and representatives of the Union Pacific R. R. Company in regard to the sale of right of way for the projected line to Oregon.

Conkling's condition is much better.

ABOUT SOLES!

SOME PEOPLE THINK THEY HAVE no soles; all the rest think they have soles. New appliances educate the people and have intelligent soles. Fishmongers have stinking soles. Some Clergymen with the bell-book and candle-light think they can demerit soles. Beecher ignores the doctrine of eternal brimstone and says it's questionable about the existence of soles. Subscribers who pay punctual for the GAZETTE have large soles while the dilatory ones have small soles, and the col lectors have so much walking to do to get their pay that they die of disease—they have poor soles. If any one thinks they have no soles, come to me. I will furnish you two good soles. One-legged men a specialty. I will make you like other folks by supplying you with a good double sole. F. R. Gentlemen of Freshmont, who put so much confidence in appearance, would do well to call early and have their feet fixed up: there are so many of that class dying in their boots. J. W. DAW-10

TRUE OMENS.

Curious Coincidences in the Cases of Captains.

New York Tribune.

A very poetic and touching incident is related by the Lockland (Mo.) Free Press of the terrible storm that raged along the Atlantic coast week before last. The steamer Cambridge lay over at Rockland during the worst of it, and finally went out with the weather still threatening. The Captain's wife, who lives in Rockland, remarked that she wished a little dove would come and tell her the boat was safe. Just then one of the children came in, exclaiming, "O, mother, the cat has caught a bird!" Mrs. Ingraham went out, and depriving kitty of her prey, found it was a young dove, which she placed in bed with her little boy. The next morning the bird was all right, and, as it flew merrily away, the loving wife declared, "Now I know the Cambridge is safe in Boston." Some thing similar to this recently occurred in Chicago. A lake Captain's wife knew that her husband's vessel was out in a terrible storm, and remarked that she wished something would tell her that the boat was safe. Just then a dog went sailing up the street with a tin can tied to its tail. The next morning her husband came home.

Triumphs Earlier than Bernhardt's.

There is a singular irrepressibility about Sarah Bernhardt. Her name is constantly gliding off the tip of the pen of the ready writer. People imagine that the reception that the divine Donna Sol received at Havre was unparalleled. Not at all; the famous Mile. de Saint-Huberti, of the opera, had still greater triumphs. In 1785 Mile. de Saint-Huberti left the opera after a quarrel with the manager, just as Sarah left the Franciscan last year. She went to Marseilles and gave twenty-three performances, which terminated with an aquatic fete. Mile. de Saint-Huberti was dressed on that day a la grecque. She arrived at the scene of the fete in an eight-oared gondola, bearing the flag of the town of Marseilles. The water was black with boats; there were fireworks and salvoes of artillery. Then, after the aquatic fete, there was a tournament on shore, and the people danced around Mile. de Saint-Huberti to the sound of tamborines and galoupes, while she, reclining on a kind of divan, received like a queen the homage of the spectators. Afterwards she was taken to a maison de plaisance, where a piece was performed which had been written in honor of this divinity of the opera by a provincial poet. After the ball which followed this piece, Mile. de Saint-Huberti was placed on a dais between Melpomene and Polymnia. Finally there was a splendid supper of sixty covers, served in a room open on all sides, and into which the people crowded to see the heroine, and the fete ended amid fireworks, salvoes of artillery and general enthusiasm.

Prejudice Kills.

"Eleven years ago daughter suffered on a bed of misery under the care of the best, and some of the worst physicians, who gave her disease various names but no relief, and now is restored to us in good health by a simple remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had looked at for two years, before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick suffer as we did, on account of prejudice against so good a medicine as Hop Bitters."—The Farmer.
